Yes, because then you'd be able to lease it out to frisky fans during high season and, hello, Superbowl XLV. This story ran in the Star-Telegram about a Phoenix based company that specializes in hooking up fans with rentals in the proximity of sports stadiums. (I'm sorry, I just cannot imagine spending a vacation and $7500 a night to stay in a McMansion right close to Cowboy's Stadium. Give me a ski mountain, give me a beach.) But I checked with Prudential's Jamie Adams, who takes care of all the big guys' real estate needs, well Jamie and Rogers Healy, and he says he has already received a lot of calls about this very notion. And stay tuned: supposedly someone is coming up with a website that will only feature celeb/star athletes' homes for sale.

My workout buddy, Stephen Giles, who's married to Clarice Tinsley, tells me they enjoyed Sunday's game after a friend sent over a stretch to pick them up from their Preston Hollow home. (Can I be friends with your friend?) Come Superbowl XLV, Steve says he'll rent out his guest house, I'll rent out my entire house! Maybe we can get a deal on the stretch limo...
